Ezra Meeker, 98 Year-Old Blazer of Western Trails, Nears End of Journey

Clings Tenaciously to Life While His Physicians Abandon Hope

EZRA MEEKER.

SEATTLE, WASH., Nov. 27—Although he was still in a state of coma, Ezra Meeker, the 98-year-old trail blazer, still was clinging to life tenaciously early today.

His physicians have abandoned hope.

They said he might die within a few hours, or, because of his wonderful stamina, he may linger on for several days.

The aged pioneer is putting up a gallant fight against death.

Before losing consciousness, he whispered weakly:

"I can't go yet.... I've lots of unfinished work to do."

But his doctors said that the thread of life had worn thin and that it might part at any time. His body, which has stood the rigorous hardships of pioneer life and attacks of disease in his later years, is slowly submitting to old age.

For nearly a century Ezra Meeker has traced a brilliant career through American history. He will be 99 years old on Dec. 29. Three-fourths of his life he has spent in advancing the cause of his beloved west.

Since 1852, when with his wife and small baby he started across the plains in a prairie schooner to the land of the setting sun, the famed pioneer has steadfastly continued his efforts to build up the western empire.

Now as the gray light falls into his room from the city roofs, he still thinks of his work and mission.

"I have lots of unfinished work. I'm not ready to go," he was heard to murmur.

"I Can't Go Yet—I've Lots of Work To Do," He Whispers

Ezra Meeker has aways been a man of action. No pioneer gathering was compete without him. Rancher, historian, traveler, he has filled nearly a dozen books with valuable accounts of western life. During the first 50 years of his married life he claims to have never spent a day in bed or needed a physician.

His "parties" on his birthdays for old timers, "ninety or over," as the invitations would read, has been the occasion of his expression of views on long living.

"There's no reason a man shouldn't live to be at least 200 years old," he once said, "if he lives a plain life, gets plenty of exercise in God's good air and doesn't indulge too freely in the bottle."

Meeker is credited with introducing one of the northwest's big crops, the culture of hops. Because of his wide range of activities and extensive tours over the country, his name is known throughout the country and he numbers among his friends scores of the leading men in the nation.

M'MANUS ARRESTED ON MURDER CHARGE

Held Without Bond in Slaying of Rothstein Nov. 6

New York, Nov. 27 — George ("Hump") McManus, white light figure and former gambling colleague of Arnold Rothstein, was formally charged today with the murder of Rothstein, the "gambling king," who was shot and mortally wounded in room 349 in the Park Central hotel on Nov. 4.

Shortly after surrendering to District Attorney Banton, of New York county, McManus was arraigned before General Sessions Court Judge Francis S. Malcuso on a short affidavit which formally accused him of the crime.

Accompanied by his lawyer, James D. C. Murray, the prisoner appeared in general sessions court where he pleaded not guilty.

McManus was held without bail for arraignment for further hearing on Friday morning.

McManus was not handcuffed when taken into court. He appeared so much at ease that the proceedings seemed to bore him. He smiled and yawned and occasionally chatted with his lawyer.

The prisoner was immaculately

Green Camp Contestants Are Awarded Honors in County Declamation Event

Merton Porter Wins First, George Schertzer Second, in Annual Oratory Competition; Speakers from 10 Churches of Marion County Entered

The village of Green Camp carried off honors in the annual Marion County Prince of Peace declamation contest, held at Central Christian church, last night before an audience which filled the edifice.

First award, a silver medal from the Ohio Council of Churches, went to Merton Porter, 16-year-old member of the senior class of Green Camp high school, and second award to George Schertzer, 16, also of Green Camp. They were selected as the winners after compelling with eight other contestants representing various churches of the county.

Porter will represent Marion county in a district contest, expected to be held in December at a place to be designated later and Schertzer will serve as alternate.

In last night's competition which followed preliminary contests held at the various churches to select the participants, Porter represented the Green Camp Baptist church and Schertzer the Green Camp M. E. church.

Contest Judges

The judges last night were Mrs. John F. McNamara, president of the Marion County Federation of Women's clubs, R. A. Garvin, principal of Vernon Heights Junior High school, and the Rev. Karl F. Patow, pastor of Prospect Street M. E. church.

Members of the Marion County Ministerial association committee in charge of the event were the Rev. George E. Groves, and the Rev. John A. Carriker, of Marion, and the Rev. W. F. Lahr, of Waldo.

"The most successful contest ever held in the county," was the opinion expressed by the Rev. Mr. Groves, county chairman, following last night's event, the county's fourth annual Prince of Peace declamation contest.

Places Assigned

Before the declamations were given, the 10 contestants drew numbers, and spoke in that routine. The Rev. Mr. Groves requested the audience to refrain from any demonstration of applause until all 10 had spoken. The contestants in addition to the two winners, were: Miss Dorothy Clark, Central Christian church; Miss Lola Sine, St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church; Miss Catherine Geyer, Church of Brethren; Miss Farel Burley, Forest

1929 AUTO LICENSES GOOD AFTER DEC. 20

1928 Tags Obsolete After Dec. 31; No Time Extension, Chief Says

Local motorists will be permitted to put 1929 license tags on their automobiles on and after Dec. 21, Police Chief J. W. Thompson announced today. This is in accordance with instructions received from Chalmers R. Wilson, state commissioner of motor vehicles.

Although 1929 license plates may be used from midnight Dec. 20, they must be on all automobiles by midnight Dec. 31, Chief Thompson stated. No extension will be granted, he said.

Last year motorists were expecting such an extension and neglected to obtain 1928 license plates until December had almost ended. As a result the offices of the Marion Auto club, from which license tags are issued, were jammed at the last moment by motorists seeking 1928 licenses.

Issuing of license plates for 1929 will be started Saturday, Dec. 1, according to a previous announcement of Mrs. D. V. Gallagher, secretary of the Marion Auto club. She suggests that local motorists obtain their 1929 tags as early as possible, in order to facilitate the issuing of license plates.

HOPPE AND RUCKER TO DIE ON NOV. 30

Only Supreme Court, Clemency Board Can Save Two Men

Columbus, Nov. 27—Unless the state board of clemency or the U. S. supreme court intervene there will be a double execution at Ohio penitentiary here Friday night, Nov. 30, prison officials said today.

The men slated to the electrocution Friday are Charles (Stanley) Hoppe, Toledo child slayer, and John Rucker, Cincinnati, negro slayer of a policeman. Hoppe's case according to his attorneys will be taken to the highest court in the land; while the clemency board is hearing arguments in the Rucker case today.

The last double execution at Ohio penitentiary was July 5, 1928, when W. H. Wilson and James Coleman, Scioto county, paid the supreme penalty for killing Paul Frederick. On Sept. 2, 1926, the only triple execution in the history of the institution was held, John Bryant, Richard Rhoades and John Hendrick, Meigs county, dying for the murder of M. R. McCumber.

The order in which Hoppe and Rucker will go to their death Friday had not been announced today according to Warden P. E. Thomas.

KOON HEARING CONCLUDED BY APPEAL COURT

Decision in Foos Murder Case Expected Within Few Days

SESSION HELD HERE

Small Audience Present To Hear Defense and Prosecution Present Arguments

Whether the verdict of guilty of murder returned against Everett Koon by a jury in common pleas court last July will be sustained or reversed by the court of appeals will not be known for perhaps several days.

Three judges, Charles L. Justice, Kent Hughes, and Silas Richards, composing the court of appeals, yesterday heard arguments of defense and state's attorneys in the appeal brought by Koon. The hearing, held in the common pleas court-room here, ended shortly before 3 o'clock. Afterward the judges spent more than an hour in conference but made no report.

Decision of the court will be handed down within a few days and will be sent here for entry in the records of the case.

Reversal Sought

In the appeal, Koon, who was represented by Attorney Homer E. Johnson, asked for a reversal of the verdict of the jury in common pleas court which found him guilty of the murder of Henry Foos while committing a robbery. Conviction of such a crime carries the death penalty. Koon was found guilty on July 11. There was no recommendation for mercy.

In the meantime the subject of the legal battle waits in the Ohio Penitentiary for the verdict of the court. He has been in death row since July 16.

The court-room yesterday presented an entirely different appearance than it did almost five months ago when Koon waged his first unsuccessful battle to escape the electric chair. For three days then the court-room was jammed to capacity. Onlookers sweltered in the midsummer heat to hear testimony and arguments in what promised to be the second murder trial in the county to end with death as the penalty.

Foos Relatives Present

Yesterday, however, the scene was changed. Gray November skies dimmed the light in the court-room. Only a score of persons were in the audience. Among them were Mrs. Foos, widow of the convicted man's victim,

City Health Commissioner Harry L. Rockwood, Cleveland, appeared to be slated for appointment by Cooper as state health director.

Death Toll Of 200 Left By Devastating World Wide Gales

FEAR SMALL SHIPS AND CREWS LOST

Estimate 100 Persons Killed in Europe and 50-100 in Philippine Provinces

SHIPPING DEMORALIZED

Five Hundred Probably Injured, with 30 to 35 Ships Sunk or Abandoned

By International News Service

The worldwide gales which struck Europe, Africa and the Philippines, devastating land properties and shipping, left a death toll which may exceed 200.

It is estimated that more than 100 persons were killed in Europe. The dead in the six Philippine provinces ravaged by a typhoon are put at from 50 to 100. Numerous small ships are missing and it is feared their crews perished.

Probably 500 persons were injured.

Between 30 and 35 ships of various sizes were reported sunk or abandoned as derelicts.

The property damage is roughly put at $20,000,000, but it may prove more or less when detailed advices are received from storm zones, some of which are still isolated.

Several thousand persons are homeless in the three vast gale areas.

Shipping has been demoralized. The Cunard liner Carinthia, which had just reached Liverpool, reported intercepting 16 S O S calls.

The inbound White Star liner Cedric brought word of a gigantic tempest over the Atlantic with combers which rocked even the mightiest of the ocean greyhounds.

English channel traffic is being restored after a suspension because ships could not enter the Dieppe, Boulogne, Calais and Ostend harbors.

The German steamship Kate Grammerstoft has foundered in the North Sea, but the crew was saved.

Lost with Crew

The Italian steamship Sulento is believed to be lost with her crew.

The British steamship Neurth Abbey reported herself helpless off West Kapel.

The liner Lancastria was unable to enter Havre port because of the rough water.

In the Philippine storm zone native troops are on duty to prevent looting. A dozen small craft were sunk in Philippine waters.

50 to 100 Dead in Typhoon

Manila, Nov. 27—Between 50 and 100 persons were killed and property damage will run into the millions as the result of a typhoon which swept through the central Philippines, it was estimated today as relief work began in the six stricken provinces of Samar, Sorsogon, Masbate, Albay, Mindoro and Romblon.

The worst damage was inflicted in the province of Albay observers stated that the coconut crop was completely destroyed and that the hemp crop was damaged to the extent of 80 per cent.

Three small villages in the province, Malilibong, Mayon and Sugoftiwi, were buried in sand, and the provincial capital Legaspi, was under six feet of water for more than a day. It was also reported that the harvest in Legaspi were destroyed but relief parties have not yet been able to approach the town.

Reports of the destruction in the provinces of Albay were sent here by a party from the U. S. S. Milwaukee, which is attempting to motor through the stricken area.

Constabulary guards have been posted at railroad stations and post offices to prevent looting.

Advices received from the cruiser Memphis, which proceeded to the island of Masbate to render aid, said that 1,500,000 pesos worth of damage had been done to the cocoanut crop on the island. The corn crop was damaged to a lesser degree.

There is no acute shortage of food in the stricken areas, relief parties reported, although it is expected that adequate steps must be taken to forestall such a possibility.

Shipping still is disrupted by the typhoon. The freighter Edgemont is three days overdue here and no word has been received of the ship. The transport Meigs has been delayed by the storm and is expected to arrive here today.

A check disclosed today that only eight of the 38 passengers aboard the motorship Picket, which capsized off Leyte, had been saved. The captain and most of the crew were rescued.

At least a dozen small boats were sunk along the Philippine coasts during the storm.

The Japanese steamer Saka Maru still is aground, but advices received from the U. S. S. Memphis said that the ship can probably be floated when the cargo is lightened.

The path of the typhoon was exceptionally wide. Although six provinces bore the brunt of the storm, its fury was felt in 10 other provinces.

In his message to the war department detailing damage, Governor General Stimson described the storm as "one of the most destructive hurricanes which has visited the Philippine since American occupation."

Washington Puzzled With Coolidge's Move To Open World Court Negotiations

Administration Senators Believe Powers or United States Will Have To Backtrack on Fifth Reservation Before Entry Is Possible

Washington, Nov. 27—President Coolidge's belated and unexpected move to renew negotiations with the powers looking toward American entrance into the World Court frankly puzzled Washington today.

Administration senators, even those most ardently supporting the court proposal, do not see how American adhesion can be secured unless either the senate or the powers are willing to backtrack on reservation number five, attached as one of the conditions of acceptance of the court protocol. This reservation provides that the court may not render advisory opinions, without consent of the United States, on any dispute in which America has or claims to have an interest. In the opinion of the powers, America thus would be given an absolute veto over advisory opinions, a privilege not accorded other adherents.

Its sponsors designed the reservation chiefly to prevent European interference in any disputes arising under America's interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine.

Refuses Invitation

The senate approved the court protocol with five reservations, in January, 1926. The following September the powers invited the United States to attend a conference to discuss the interpretation of the fifth reservation. America declined, saying the reservation spoke for itself. Quite pointedly the powers, notably France and Great Britain, interposed objections to the American position and there the question rested until President Coolidge revealed his intentions at a breakfast conference with senators on Saturday.

Only two countries, Cuba and Liberia, have unqualifiedly accepted America's conditions.

Senator Borah, Republican of Idaho and others of the irreconcilable group have repeatedly declared the senate will not modify the fifth reservation.

The powers, however, may come around to the American view by providing that unanimous consent must be obtained in the council of the League of Nations for the court to give an advisory opinion. The United States, though a non-member of the league, would be extended identical privileges in this respect with council members, under the proposal. Such a scheme probably would be acceptable in Washington, as it is strictly in line with the mooted reservation.

Can't Finish Work

Few believe any new negotiations can bear fruit before Mr. Coolidge leaves the White House in March. Thus, president-elect Hoover would be charged with carrying on the exchanges and including American adherence when he comes into office.

What motivated the president's latest effort, in view of the virtual certainty time will not permit him to conclude the negotiations, caused considerable speculation today. The most general theory was that Mr. Coolidge designed it as a friendly gesture to clean up the problem before he steps out. Further, he may have been influenced by the recent election of Charles Evans Hughes as a judge of the court, and the opposition of the Kellogg anti-war treaty.

KELLOGG PACT TO GET EASY SAILING

Washington, Nov. 27—The Kellogg-Briand anti-war treaty seemed assured of comparatively easy sailing in the senate today.

Senator Borah Republican of Idaho has endorsed it, so has Senator Norris, Republican, of Nebraska, leader of the senate insurgent. The latest to add his endorsement is Senator Swanson, Democrat, of Virginia, the ranking Democrat on the foreign relations committee.

Lawn Presbyterian church; Miss Marjorie Gustin, Asbury M. E. church; Miss Grace Groll, Waldo St. Jacob's Reformed church; Miss Dorothy Barkley, Kirkpatrick M. E. church; Miss Virginia Virden, LaRue M. E. church.

Merton Porter, the contest winner, is ranked high as an excellent student at Green Camp high school and plays guard on the school basketball team. He is interested in public speaking and last year was a member of the debate team from his school.

Points In Speech

Some of the points brought out in his speech, "Winning Peace," written by Daniel A. Poling, editor of the Christian Herald, president of Greater New York Federation of Churches and a figure of importance in other church activities are given below:

"Peace, so ardently hoped for, came out of the armistice conference in France on the eleventh of November, 1918. We united expectantly for the treaty and when finally it issued from Versailles we found that at best it but recorded progress. Upon one thing we were all agreed—until the peace had been won, the war itself could not be said to have been won, and that to lose the peace, to fail in perfecting the peace meant to lose the war.

"War settles nothing finally. At best it opens the way for certain issues to be settled. The nations still have their vast standing armies. They are still unable to agree upon the elimination of the submarine.

"It was David Lloyd George who first declared, 'Unless we win the peace we have lost the war.'

Tremendous Cost

"The direct cost of the war was $180,000,000,000 with an estimated total loss, including destroyed shipping, damaged property, loss of production etc., of over $355,000,000,000

"But what of peace? What is it, or rather, what is it to be? We still find ourselves absorbed in this question. What kind of peace shall we have? The peace that Jesus promised, the peace that Jesus gave to His Disciples, the peace of Christ. It is the peace that survives, and from its plan shines man's only star of promise.

"How win the peace? It is won by faith. Between Great Britain and the United States—on our north are 4,000 miles of demonstrated faith in international honor—as James McDonald used to say, 'A thousand miles of mountains, a thousand miles of plains, a thousand miles of lakes, a thousand miles of rivers, without a fort.'

Other Methods Fail

"The world has gone to the end of the trail with her outgrown devices of statesmanship. She has tried every other way, and all roads have led at last to the same catastrophe. Let her now adventure faith. For nations as well as for individuals, He is the way, He is the truth, He is the life.

"The peace of Christ is the peace of 'Love ye your enemies and forgive them that despitefully use you.' We do not find it in ourselves; it is a gift. 'Peace I leave with you. My peace I give unto you.'

Scherzer's Subject

"A Challenge to America," by Stanley High, assistant secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions, Methodist Episcopal church, won the award of alternate for George Scherzer.

Preceding the program, James E. Campbell gave a vocal solo and the Rev. Mr. Groves explained the contest and its purpose of promoting world peace.

While the judges were in session Mr. Groves announced the Thanksgiving services to be held Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at the Trinity Baptist church.

and Mr. and Mrs. George Bird, son-in-law and daughter of the murdered man. These three also sat through the long court sessions last July and were the state's chief witnesses.

The fate of the condemned man was taken from the hands of a jury of his peers and placed with the three judges of the court. The jury box was empty. It will not be for the court to decide, however, whether Koon is guilty or innocent, but whether there is any error in the record of the lower court. This will be the decision the three judges will make within a few days.

Yesterday morning the court heard the argument of Attorney Johnson in contention of his claim that there was error in the record of the common pleas court. In the afternoon the court heard the arguments of the state's attorneys, Frank Wiedemann, prosecuting attorney, and Carter Patton, police prosecutor. Their arguments before the court were practically the same as those used five months ago in convincing the jury that Koon was guilty of murder while perpetrating a robbery.

Attorney Johnson held in his argument that Koon had no intention of coinmitting robbery until after the struggle with Mr. Foos. It was his claim that such being the case Koon was not guilty of murder while committing a robbery.

State's attorneys argued that Koon's intentions could be judged only by his actions. They pointed to his confession in which he admitted striking the blows which caused the death of Mr. Foos and taking more than $700 from a wallet laying on a couch in the room in which the struggle took place.

dressed. He is a large, fleshy man standing six feet and weighing about 200 pounds.

McManus was identified by Mrs. Ruth Keyes, the Chicago model, as one of the men she had seen in the room at the Park Central hotel just before Rothstein was shot.

Rothstein died on Nov. 6 in the Polyclinic hospital.

For three weeks the police and district attorney's office had been conducting a nation wide search for the slayer of the "gambling king," spurred on by scathing criticism daily in the press.

DENIES REPORT

Hoff Says M'Manus Did Not Seek His Aid

Philadelphia, Nov. 27—Max "Boo Boo" Hoff, styled by District Attorney John Monaghan as "king of Philadelphia's bootleggers," today denied that he had been asked by George McManus, "key man" in the Rothstein murder mystery, to aid in raising $400,000 bail for the release of four other men held in New York in connection with the crime.

"That's all just another lie," Hoff snapped when asked about the report that McManus had been here to enlist "Boo Boo's" aid. "I haven't seen McManus for three years," he said.

Local Relief Authorities Rescue Mother, Children Found in Destitute Home

Woman's Fifth Child Born Dead After She Is Discovered in Cold and Meagerly Furnished Dwelling; Family Practically Without Food

Conditions which the Red Cross endeavors to alleviate were vividly pictured by a case in which aid was given by the city relief department and the Marion County Humane society yesterday. Although the Marion County Red Cross chapter had no part in this case yesterday, the Red Cross nurse has given medical aid in former emergencies.

At the present time the Red Cross is conducting a drive in Marion county to obtain funds to aid in such cases.

At approximately 2 o'clock yesterday morning neighbors of Mrs. Wilda Herrington, 590 Bartram st., called Dr. Maude Bull, and asked that she come immediately to her aid.

When Dr. Bull reached the Herrington home, she found that Mrs. Herrington was bearing her fifth child without medical aid. She was immediately rushed to the city hospital, where the child was born dead.

Exposed to Cold

Yesterday morning the temperature dropped to 18 degrees. Mrs. Herrington was lying on an iron bed upon a hard and thin mattress with only a single cotton blanket for covering when Dr. Bull arrived.

Her four children, Marjorie, 11, Elibeth, 6, Maryland, 5, and Dorothy, 2, were huddled together for warmth on an old mattress with a single tagged quilt for covering. They were taken in for the remainder of the night by neighbors, who have eight children of their own.

Yesterday morning hospital officials reported to case to Charles M. Tobin, city relief inspector, and James F. Ullom, Marion County Humane society officer. When Tobin and Ullom went out to the Bartram st. house, they found that the only food in the house was eight potatoes, five of them very small, and a little lard.

For furniture there were two tables, two iron beds, one of them with no mattress, and a cook stove. Paper hung from the walls in shreds. Glass was broken in the windows. The "home" was a hovel.

Tobin reported the case to Mrs. Emma Bain, matron at the Marion County Detention home, where the children were taken. Later clothing and shoes were bought for the children.

Tobin found a letter from the father, Clyde Herrington, who had gone to Cleveland in search of work. Herrington stated that he would have a pay day Saturday and suggested that Mrs. Herrington sell a hatchet and lantern which remained in the house so that she might obtain a dollar to buy food.

Gathers Coal

Neighbors stated that the day before the birth of Mrs. Herrington's fifth child, she had been seen rolling large chunks of coal from the railroad cars in back of the house and carrying them into the house. The chunks of coal weighed approximately 10 or 15 pounds.

For weeks Mrs. Herrington and her children had been existing by borrowing food from neighbors, they said. They would beg all that could be obtained from one family and then would ask another. And some of those from whom they begged are little better off than the Herrington family, authorities say.

Tobin stated that although he had frequently aided the Herringtons, he had not been informed of their present plight or he would have extended help much sooner.

The city will pay for the burial of the fifth Herrington baby. Both Mr. and Mrs. Herrington are approximately 30 years old.

But It's a Pleasant Subject—Now
During warm weather the purchase of coal was a disagreeable topic but it is a mighty pleasant one now that the mercury has started flirting with the freezing mark. For as the temperature goes down the purchase of coal, and especially QUALITY coal, is associated with cozy comfort during long winter evenings in a warm home.
To some folks, using ordinary coal, winter may mean cold, chills, and chattering teeth.
—but to users of Leffler's Coal, with its extra heat units, winter means basking in the warmth of a blazing bright fire; it means cheery contentment inside, with the home a haven of refuge from bitter, biting blizzards outside.

MARYLAND CARRIES HOOVER TO CORINTO

President-Elect Is Wildly Acclaimed by Honduras and Salvador

Aboard U. S. S. Maryland, (Via Arlington Radio Station) Nov. 27—The U. S. S. Maryland was proceeding southward today towards Corinto, Nicaragua, the third port of call of President-elect Herbert Hoover's Latin-American "friendship" tour.

The battleship weighed anchor shortly after midnight when a gale which at first threatened to interfere with today's schedule suddenly spent its force as tropical storms often do.

When Mr. Hoover reaches Corinto today he will be greeted by Brig. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, and Brig. Gen. Logan Feland, and other leading figures in the recent election troubles in Nicaragua.

At Corinto, the Maryland will pick up its complement of 78 United States marines. Among these is Kuestner, the heavyweight champion of the corps, whom the marines regard as the logical successor to Gene Tunney.

Wildly Acclaimed

A gale which struck over Cutuco, Salvador, threatened to prevent the scheduled departure of the Maryland.

Mr. Hoover was wildly acclaimed yesterday by Honduras and Salvador, the first two countries he visited on his tour.

At Amapala, Honduras and La Union, he stressed the fact that his mission was one of friendship. Representatives of the presidents of both nations delivered orations of welcome.

In replying to these Mr. Hoover said that only sound basis for international communion between countries lay in mutual respect and prosperous economic relations.

Presidential salutes greeted the Hoover party both here and at Amapala. Throngs of several thousand lined the streets of both cities and cheered the American visitors. At Amapala, Mr. Hoover was presented with the key to the city and a ribbon with the Honduran colors of blue and white was hung about his neck.

RESTRICT PARKING AT UNION STATION

New Rule Bars Autoists Not Having Business with Railroads

For the last several years the space in front of the Union station on West Center st. has been a popular spot for the parking of cars in the daytime. In fact it was so popular that all the space was taken up with automobiles not belonging to persons calling at the station on business.

This situation, so it was announced today at the offices of the Hocking Valley railroad, has been changed. Special detectives have been working on the matter and from now on only cars belonging to persons calling on business or carrying passengers will be allowed to park on the property of the railroad.

Complete Inspection

The annual track inspection of the Hocking Valley railroad will be completed today when officials of the road end a tour of the company's lines.

Yesterday track between Columbus and Toledo was gone over and today the inspection party traveled south on the line from Columbus. F. A. Sparks, supervisor of the road in Marion, made the tour.

Adds Extra Cars

In order to take care of the annual holiday rush in passenger and mail traffic, the Erie railroad is adding extra cars to its trains passing through Marion, it was announced here today. The extra cars will be carried until after Christmas.

Officials Here

C. E. Ackerman, chief telegraph inspector, and O. L. Enos, general passenger agent, were business visitors at the Erie railroad terminal offices here yesterday.

Last Excursion

A special excursion, the last of the season, will be run by the Erie railroad to Chicago on Dec. 8. The train will be composed of 10 coaches and will pick up passengers at all points between Youngstown and Marion, inclusive.

Big Business Men Say Reaction, When It Comes, Will Be Severe

PROFESSIONALS SAFE

Look for History of Bull Markets To Repeat Itself

BY W. S. COUSINS

(Copyright 1928, by I. N. S.)

New York, Nov. 27—Lubrication is essential to smoothly moving machinery; and money is needed for a swiftly advancing stock market. Cut off the oiling apparatus of a highly-geared machine and it would soon grind itself out of existence. Cut off the money supplies from the steam-roller stock market and the downward crash would not be long delayed.

Talk to any one of dozen or more of the biggest and most prominent bankers and investment heads in Wall Street today; men who stand supreme in their own institutions; whose word is law in their own houses; whose skill and judgment has been undisputed in the past; who have always been able to "call the turn" on important events affecting American industrial, financial and investment conditions.

They will tell you that sooner or later the pyramiding of bank credit in a topsy-turvy stock market will end in a severe jolt for the sky-flying tendencies of the market; that the reaction, when it comes, will be severe and painful; that the professionals who are "running the market" now will have a soft berth behind their lines of profit and that thousands of small investors will be "holding the bag" as they have done in every big bull market in Wall Street history.

The bankers are not so much afraid of high stock prices, in the closely-held "jazz babies" that have been plunging skyward so recklessly in the last few weeks. They fear for the credit basis behind the whole market; the process by which many of these stocks are blown up like a balloon, partly with speculators' money—but partly also with money borrowed in New York and Oshkosh, Barriers' Falls and Chicago, and even London and Amsterdam.

What Will They Do?

The magnet of high money rates has brought money to Wall Street from city banks, country banks, European banks, savings deposits, old stockings and other hiding places and the speculators have used it as part of the purchase price of their swiftly rising specialty stocks on the big board and other exchanges. When the money gives out, as surely it must some day, what will these speculators do?

This question is answered in part at least by George E. Roberts, the "contact man" of the National City Bank of New York, the writer of all of its very excellent treaties on financial and economic matters and one of the most brilliant banker-economists of the country.

A year ago, Roberts points out, call money was loaning at four per cent, against the six to eight per cent rate prevailing in the last few months. Commercial paper rates have been higher, one to one and one-half per cent and long-term investment rates have been higher, which means that prices of prime bonds have declined. What does it all mean and what is the cause of the sudden jacking up of rates? Did the bankers squeeze up the price of money, or how have they contributed to the result, if at all?

To be Showdown

No, they did not. Big traders and little traders in the stock market, bidding for funds with which to pursue the rapidly rising stocks, have cleaned up all the available money in sight. What difference to them is they paid six per cent, or eight per cent or even 10 per cent (per year) interest on the money, when they were making profits of 10 per cent to 50 per cent in a week or even a day.

Now there is to be a show-down. The bankers will positively tighten up on their requirements for money borrowed on the stock market and it will be surprising if that does not clip the wings of the skyscraping industrial and specialty stocks which appear to have been "discounting" not a year or two of prosperity, but a decade or more of big earnings for industry. If they do all of their discounting now, what will they have to discount a year or two from today?

Marion Man's Turk Gets Jump on Thanksgiving Ax

PROUDLY Zeb Stout, automobile dealer, returned to his home last night after trying his luck at a turkey raffle held at a local lodge hall

Draped over his arm was a fine specimen of turkey and Stout did not have to play upon his imagination to any great extent to picture it steaming on the family table, Thanksgiving day

The bird had cost him more than $12 for the wheel of fortune had not turned in Stouts favor until after he had invested numerous times But that fact failed to squelch his Thanksgiving spirit.

Arriving at his home Stouts beaming smile suddenly vanished He found that his turkey had expired as he was homeward bound Just why and how, he couldn't figure out But there was no room for doubt The turk was as dead as it would have been after applying the Thanksgiving ax

The lodge authorities will probably supply a substitute turkey which is still enjoying a temporary lease on life

This is expected although an officer of the lodge jokingly informed Stout that he had no reason to complain saying What if it did, die? You intended to kill it'

CONGRESS MAY NOT TAKE UP RADIO ACT

General Revision of Law Not Likely at Coming Session

Washington Nov 27—Congress is unlikely to undertake a general revision of the radio act in the coming session in the opinion of Representative Wallace A White, of Maine Republican coauthor of the law and chairman of the house merchant marine committee

Radio legislation he said today probably would be limited to the question of extending the life of the federal radio commission. Its authority expires March 15

Admitting that wide-spread protests have arisen out of the commissions reallocation of wave lengths in compliance with the radio law White said that time in the short session will prevent a general revision

Among the proposed amendments to the law suggested is one permitting wireless and cable services to combine This proposal is said to have been advanced by the Radio Corporation of America and the Western Union as a method of cheaper trans... the proposed merger of British wireless and cable interests for world-wide service

In my opinion no radio legislation will be enacted at this short session unless it is legislation extending the original authority of the radio commission said White

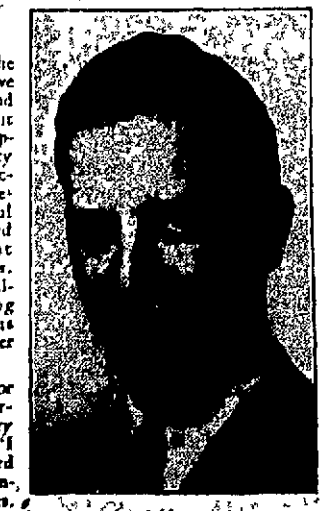
MARION'S FOREMOST FUNERAL HOME
Unequalled Service at No Extra Cost

Life carefully planned for next ten years

Keeps eye always on higher office



ASK any of the boys who've made good and they'll tell you it didn't just happen by a lucky break Their success was the result of careful planning Hard work Night school, perhaps. And above all always attending strictly to this important matter of health

"I had no time for outdoor exercise, is the story you'll hear. "I couldn't afford one of those gymnasium courses. But I figured I could keep myself in good shape by taking Nujol I've taken it ever since. And it's helped as much as anything to keep me fit and on the job every day."

If you're always on the job, always 100% fit, you'll be a good bet for any employer.

There's no easier way to keep in fine condition than by taking Nujol. Nujol is not a medicine. It's just a pure, natural substance that helps your system to function as Nature meant it to under all conditions: Normally Emily. Regularly. Without any extra effort and strain on your part It not only keeps in excess of body poisons from forming (we all have them), but aids in their removal Nujol can't possibly upset or disagree with you, because it contains absolutely nothing in the way of medicine or drugs It is simply a pure mineral substance. Perfected by the Nujol Laboratories, 26 Broadway, New York

Start Nujol today. Give it a fair try—for the next three months, anyway. By the end of that time—even before then perhaps—see if you don't feel much more all 'round fit. If you're like everyone else, you'll have more ambition and energy, feel more optimistic, and look like a different person after following this wise regime. And you'll praise Nujol to your friends, too!

You can buy Nujol at all druggists for a small sum. Watch your step—isn't it! Nujol is sold at similar signs only. Keep an eye out for them, and buy a bottle for your own home tonight.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

Daily Proverb—"There is more true happiness in the folly of love than in all the wisdom of philosophy."

Of course you got up to see the eclipse? Neither did we?

"Situation in Bulgaria Reported Near Normal," reads a headline over a Washington story, from which we assume that a revolution is brewing over there.

Now, had Mr. Hoover approved the proposal to stage a display parade and give an inaugural ball, then that would have been news.

Word comes from the City of Brotherly Love that the graft inquiry "has just started." Great Scott! Is the entire population made up of police captains?

If Mr. Lloyd George and Premier Baldwin continue their controversy much longer, the public is liable to get a fairly good idea of what they think of each other.

It's a bit surprising to read that California is suffering from an epidemic of "the flu." We never imagined a thing like that could successfully battle the California climate.

Three of the best-known doctors in the country voiced to the Central Society for Clinical Research, in session in Chicago, agreement on the proposition that rheumatism varies with the weather. Gee! Isn't science wonderful?

Aside from the fact that cost estimate is scores of millions too low; that the all-American canal is not necessary; that the amortization plan will not work out and that there must be marked modification of the plans and specifications, the Short commission reports that the Boulder Dam project might pass muster if it were absolutely necessary.

Aimee Semple McPherson, on her arrival in New York, told reporters that stories of her further prosecution would prove to be "the bunk." If we got the situation correctly, District Attorney Keyes has been indicted out in Los Angeles on the theory that Aimee's previous prosecution was largely "bunk."

Surgeon General M. W. Ireland, of the army, reports that sickness in the army decreased 32.38 per cent. in 1927 compared with the record of 1926. A few more health gains like that, and soldering is liable to hold the record as the safest of all occupations.

Of course, if present-day marbles can be unloaded on Boston, Cleveland and other American museums as renaissance works of art, it's something of a joke on their experts, but if the marbles are good enough to fool them, why should they be withdrawn from exhibition? Are works to be valued only because of their age?

Twelve Chicago women bridge players were robbed of $31,370 in money and jewelry and twelve Cleveland Heights pinochle players were held up and touched for $6,360 in cash and jewelry. It has been contended that both bridge and pinochle are games of science, but it's beginning to look as though they may better be described as games of chance.

Improvement in Labor Conditions.

Announcement is made by the national industrial conference board that the income of the wage-earners of the United States this fall reached the highest level they have attained since 1920 and that employment in manufacturing plants reached its highest average since April of 1927.

The announcement of the board, which is based on figures received from approximately 1,500 manufacturing plants carrying twenty-five lines of industry and employing 800,000 workers, shows an hourly increase to wage-earners in eighteen of the twenty-five plants and an average weekly increase of forty-one cents in September over the preceding month for all of them. There were six per cent. more workers employed in September, this year, than at the low point in November, 1927, and an increase of 10.8 per cent. in the number of hours worked in September over the hours worked in November of last year. Somewhat lesser gains were made in last September in each case over the month of August.

It is true that the gains in number of employed, pay by the hour and hours worked are not large ones, but such as they are they are decidedly comforting, bearing out as they do the contentions of those who early last summer held out that the outlook for improvement in economic conditions was good; and that the general prosperity which the country was enjoying at that time would be maintained.

In many ways the year, 1928, has been out of the ordinary, among them being the burying for all time of the old bugaboo that a presidential year necessarily had to be reckoned as one marked by industrial, commercial and general business depression.

Why Not a Community Chest?

Marion should have a community chest. There is no reason why our city should not be and every reason why it should be in line with the other progressive cities of the state in this respect.

Our attention was again called to this civic lack by the announcement in our issue of Monday that a poor start had been made in this year's Red Cross drive owing to the failure of many of those who were supposed to make Sunday's canvass to report for duty, with the result that many districts of the city were not covered. It might also have been said that some homes in districts which supposedly were canvassed were passed by solicitors without the slightest attempt being made to secure subscriptions.

We can not imagine any excuse for the latter sin of omission, but it is not at all difficult to understand the failure of some assigned to the work to come out for such canvasses, especially those who have made similar canvasses of the city in the past. They probably realize, certainly those who have had experience in such drives do, that drives and tag days, no doubt due to the multiplicity of them, do not appeal to the public as they once did, and very frequently do not meet a response in the residential districts of the city which justifies the expenditure of time taken to make them. And time really means money to many men who are called on to take part in such canvasses. The members of many a team in such a drive as that of last week to increase the Y. M. C. A. membership would have been money ahead had they gone down into their own pockets and thus raised the fund reported by their team, and given their time and attention to their regular business pursuits. In the cases of salaried men on teams, often the employers would be ahead were they to make cash contributions in addition to their own contributions instead of contributing their employes' time.

Had Marion a community chest, the work of canvassing the city would be greatly simplified. One canvass would secure the necesary funds to cover all the city's philanthropic projects. It might take several days. It might take a week, but, the goal being accomplished, there would be no tag days, no drives, no demands for funds for philanthropic or charitable purposes for a year. The public would appreciate this freedom from solicitation. It would know that the money raised would be equitably proportioned, and we believe that it would give far more freely than its subscriptions aggregate under the present practice in raising funds.

And there is this further consideration; as all demands for funds would be met by one and same drive, there would no longer be the question of priority in drives. As it is, it is sometimes the case that a call for funds less worthy than some which follows it works to their disadvantage.

This city, like every other city, will always have those among its population who must be given temporary relief. There are bound to be calls on its generosity. Why not, then, be prepared to meet them? It is too late to act this year, but not too early to begin planning for the next. Why not now begin considering the matter of a community chest for Marion?

It is estimated that the inheritance taxes on the estate left by the late Thomas Fortune Ryan will aggregate over $20,000,000. Nobody ever heard of a hard-working spender of joy and sunshine in paragraphs hoarding up wealth to make possible any such a hold-up as that.

There's no occasion for that Gary man to get cheesy over the fact that he has a watch marked "Buckingham 1125," which he takes to indicate that it is 803 years old. We once had one marked 397, and if the 396 gotten out before it were no better than it was, a $1.50 Ingersol would be of more value than the entire lot of them.

Announcement is made by a scientist of the American Chemical society that xylotrihydroxyglutanic acid, which is made from peanut shells and cottonseed bran, can be used for the making of lemonade. If it tastes anything like it looks it should be able to kill any thirst.

Fond du Lac county, up in Wisconsin, has organized a body of vigilantes. If corruption in courts and police organizations obtains much longer, that will be the answer to crime, the country over.

It's a hopeful sign when town dealers who heretofore have been heavy shippers of rabbits announce that they will neither buy nor sell them this year owing to the prevalence of tularemia in that state, northern Missouri and western Illinois. It shows a consideration for the public health which is most commendable.

Women Politicians and Cooks.

Mrs. James M. Downey, of Detroit, for six years a member of the Michigan Republican state central committee, has announced her retirement from politics forever, saying that she would rather be considered a good cook than a good woman politician.

"I'm completely disillusioned after all these years," said this mother of four children and grandmother of three. "Never again will I have anything to do with anything political except just to cast my vote.

"Women in politics here are not interested in the candidate or the party," she declared. "They oppose each other because they do not like each other's clothes, or husbands, or friends. They know nothing of politics either."

We do not propose to commit the folly of marrying trouble and making enemies of our good women friends by conceding that this Detroit woman's contention regarding women's fitness for the political field is well founded, but we will say this: there's an awful need in the country for good cooks.

Nasal Catarrh Common.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

One of my readers in Illinois desires an article on nasal catarrh. This is not surprising, because there are few ailments more prevalent than this.

The American climate is ideal for the development of nasal catarrh. We have frequent changes in the weather and consequently are exposed to conditions which favor the development of colds.

When medicine has progressed a little more I expect we will have more information about the common cold than we have at present. Every effort has been made to find out the germ or other agent responsible for this chain of symptoms. So far the quest has not been successful.

If science could locate the germ it is probable that a serum or vaccine could be made which would prevent the taking of cold, or would cure the cold when it is once acquired. Of course, there are serums which have alleged value, but these can not be universally successful because we have too many types of colds with which to deal.

What doctors call "shotgun" prescribing will not avail in relieving every cold. It may happen the serum is suited for one kind, but is useless in all others. Whatever may be the cause of the common cold, there can be no doubt that repeated attacks result in thickening of the tissues of the nose and the production of symptoms which we know as catarrh.

The mucous membrane of the nose possesses two kinds of glands, "mucous glands" and "serous glands." The former throw out the thick mucus; the latter furnish the watery fluid which runs from the nose under certain conditions.

When there is a chronic inflammation of the lining membrane of the nose and of the cavities opening into the nose there is an oversecretion of mucus. Perhaps the serous glands do not function so there is not enough of the watery fluid in it to wash it away, so the mucus accumulates. Then it drops into the throat and causes the annoying hawking and spitting which are associated with this ailment.

The trouble about nasal catarrh is that it won't stay in the nose. It gradually extends downward into the throat and upward through the eustachian tubes, as they are called, to the ear. Then we get middle ear catarrh, and deafness is likely to follow.

There is, however, much than can be done by local treatment to relieve the symptoms of nasal catarrh. The use of an atomizer may help so far as home treatment is concerned. Personally, I have great faith in the use of argyrol, lumpons, but these should be applied by your physician.

I beg of you not to consider nasal catarrh a hopeless thing. By well directed treatment it can be greatly benefitted, if not removed entirely.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

V. M. Q—What will remove puffs under the eyes and smooth out wrinkles due to frowning?

A—Find the cause of the puffs. A heart or kidney condition, dissipation may all be possible causes. Examination will determine the necessary treatment. Gentle massage using a good cold cream and massaging with the tips of the fingers should be helpful to some extent.

A—Proper diet and elimination should help to clear up these blemishes. Equal parts of lemon juice and peroxide will act as a bleach for freckles.

2—See an orthopedist for his advice. This condition is more easily corrected in early childhood than in later years.

MAUDLIN TEARS.

An unpleasant story in the criminal annals of Chicago was last week given to the public. A father, in a drunken rage, killed his twenty-two-year-old son, when the boy upbraided him for coming home intoxicated. The lad offered his father a shotgun given him by the father as a Christmas present a year ago. He told his father to shoot, as he would rather be dead than be the son of a drunkard.

The drunken moron fired. His son fell dead at his feet. The only excuse the killer gave to the authorities was that he was too drunk to know what he was doing. His remorse because of his irreparable deed is described in dramatic exuberance by an emotional reporter.

At the trial last week the same emotional reporter found opportunity to extend himself. He tells us of the tears which exuded from the lachrymal glands of a "hardened" prosecuting attorney, of a jury which sobbed and of a judge convulsed with emotion, with most of the court-room blubbering.

The killer was acquitted. It was all over in less than an hour. The facts were admitted. There was nothing to the case, so far as the defense and the prosecution were concerned, except that the man was overwhelmed with remorse.

It was a great day for Cook county—for justice and humanity. It had been believed and held that drunkenness could constitute no excuse in face of accused criminal delinquency—as ignorance of the law is held to be no valid excuse for the law's violation. But the acquittal of his self-confessed, befuddled and besotted killer of his own decent son appears to refute all such conceptions.

We don't know whether or not the released murderer was sent home attended by a military escort of honor, but something of that kind properly would have rounded out the picture of sobbing judge, leaking prosecutor and misty-eyed jury and audience, with maybe the arresting cops trying to dam their eyes with napkins or towels, bed bed quilts or something.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, Nov. 27.—There is a distinct and rugged he-man atmosphere about those chop-houses with English tavern fronts running off either hip of Broadway in the Thirties and Forties. They feature Irish bacon and eggs, double lamb chops, meat stews, big Idaho baked potatoes packed with fiery paprika.

Their pies are double the average slice and their puddings are deep-dished with generous flagons of thick cream. Salads are in capacious bowls seasoned heavily with onions and garlic. The proprietors are those alert and chubby types peculiar to Broadway.

They are known as Jimmie, Eddie or Jack and have the sleek appearance of having just quitted a barber-shop. They grip a cigar tightly between firm teeth, talk a little out of the side of the mouth and have a fair weather manner that is quite engaging.

Customers seem to enjoy calling them by first name and receiving their hearty thump on the back. They are the types in the ringside seats at prize-fights, generous in their donations to Broadway "benefits" and bear the negligible stamp of "good fellow."

Some of them run along profitably without selling liquor, but the majority have something behind the door for those who are "right" and quite a number are conducted in the wide-open manner of the old days. The appeal is solely to those with the hearty appetites of a Will Hogg or Irvin Cobb.

The patronage offers a colorful exhibit of characters so indelibly linked with the Tenderloin—race track followers with hefty blondes, racketeers with their night pallor who breakfast at 4 p. m., booking agents, bandbook men, touts and gigolos.

The chop-house waiter is a distinct type that has passed in almost every other restaurant. He is past middle age, Irish, retains a delightful brogue and suffers from broken down arches, the almost inevitable occupational penalty of his servitude.

A rather important news tid-bit to New Yorkers only was the passing of Trudy, the sea lioness at the aquarium. To downtown Manhattan she was almost as much of a fixture as the Woolworth tower. She was a big help to the nimble pickpockets who make the aquarium their haven. Visitors often became so engrossed in Trudy's aquatic behaviorisms that lifting their wallets was simplified. Trudy was also a prolific source of cop. for dull Monday mornings along Park row. You can not libel a fish which, come to think of it, wouldn't be much fun anyway.

Volcanoes and Cold Years.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

Professor W. J. Humphreys, of the weather bureau, thinks that cold years are associated with preceding great volcanic outbursts, which fill the upper air with vast clouds of very fine volcanic dust, which, beside producing gorgeous sunset displays, arrests the heat radiation of the sun. This is no new hypothesis, but Professor Humphreys has made a special study of the idea and brings forward much evidence in support of it.

He finds by comparing meteorological records with records of volcanic explosions during the past three centuries that each great eruption of that kind has been followed by "one or more cool, cloudy summers," as the effects are supposed to last so long, of course the intervening winters must also have abnormally low temperatures."

The "year without a summer" par excellence, which gave rise to that phrase, was 1816. This followed closely after tremendous explosion of the volcano, Tomboro, in the East Indies, which occurred the year before. At that time world-wide observations such as have been available in more recent times did not exist. But in 1883 happened the most stupendous volcanic explosion in all recorded history.

A volcano on the small island of Krakatoa in the Strait of Sunda, between Java and Sumatra, blew up with such fierce and sudden energy that it practically destroyed the entire island with all its inhabitants, and sent out oceanic waves that were perceived thousands of miles away; but, more significantly, it filled the air with immense undulations which were traced by their effects on the barometer completely around the world.

The vast clouds of fine volcanic dust which it hurled into the upper atmosphere, also spread in the course of succeeding months all around the globe, and awoke wonder and admiration everywhere by the magnificent crimson sunsets and sunrises thus produced. Conspicuous halos were also produced around the sun and the moon. These effects continued visible, with decreasing intensity, for several years, and in the meanwhile other great volcanic outbursts occurred in Alaska and New Zealand. Professor Humphreys says that "the low temperature period following this group"—of volcanic explosions—"was second only to that of 1816."

In fact, there seems to be a periodicity affecting such grouped explosions, and the attendant cold years, which is brought out in Professor Humphreys' list.

Thus, the Tomboro eruption of 1815, which preceded the most famous "year without a summer," was the culmination of a group of great eruptions, beginning in 1808, and including the volcanoes of St. George in the Azores, Etna in Sicily, La Soufriere in the West Indies and Mayon in the Philippines, and during this period there were several years of abnormally low temperature.

It is regarded as not impossible that another cold, summerless year may be brought about by the group of volcanic eruptions which seem to be in operation at the present time, though it has not, up to date, produced an explosion comparable with those above mentioned. Still, Mayon in the Philippines has shown itself restless, and even the formidable Krakatoa, which reduced itself to a wrecked stump in 1883, is said recently to have shown signs of renewed activity.

This theory of a relationship between volcanic explosions and world-wide decreases of temperature has been tentatively tended to the famous glacial periods, which still remain without generally accepted explanation.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Here's a thoughtful man who deserves a great deal of praise by all Americans. He has written an English grammar that does not contain rules. He gives various forms of punctuation and various forms of usage. He quotes authority. He doesn't tell you which or what is right. His name is Dr. George Oliver Curme, and he is a teacher in Northwestern university.

It is rather interesting to note that an English publishing house wanted to print Dr. Curme's grammar—which is a three-volume work—but this publishing house considered the American language as a dialect and not really the English language at all. Dr. Curme pointed out that 120,000,000 persons speak this "dialect" and that it is indeed a language. So the book is published in America.

Speaking of the American language, it is surely no queerer and no funnier than the English language of England. And as for dialects it is doubtful if the average London man can even understand his brother Britisher from Yorkshire, unless the Yorkshireman has learned to speak the London tongue.

Nothing more fascinating than language and the history of languages. This astonishing tool for the communication of thought and ideas—and for the communication of waste products—is a source of marvelous discoveries. Few have any idea of the number of languages and their relationships. Their lack of apparent relationship is one of the chief sources of fascination. The man from Madrid in Spain is unable to understand the citizen of Barcelona in the same country, unless he has learned the language. The people of Madrid speak Spanish and the people of Barcelona speak Catalan.

Latin is the base of much modern language. In the old days it was thought worth while for boys and girls to study Latin that the whole world of language might be opened up to them. Nowadays there is no time for that. The wheels of education have to grind very fast to produce a sufficient supply of cement mixers and radio part makers.

The day that we begin to measure the value of education by cash register figures we have lost both the significance and the joy of education. To know for the intellectual thrill of knowing, to study for the love of cultivating the mind and the memory, to learn for the love of learning are experiences too rich to be bought by dollars.

WILL TAKE ACTION TO AVERT DISASTERS

Regulations To Increase Safety at Sea Will Be Placed Before Congress

New York, Nov. 27—Stung by newspaper criticisms that his investigation into the sinking of the liner Vestris was accomplishing nothing, United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle let it be known today that constructive action toward averting similar disasters in the future will be taken when congress meets next month. An attempt will be made to enact regulations designed to increase safety at sea, the legislation being based on technical opinions offered at the present investigation.

Leslie Watson, second officer of the Vestris, was to take the stand at the resumption of the investigation this afternoon if his health permitted. Watson is suffering from internal injuries in a hospital.

Watson, it has been testified, had charge of lowering the lifeboats on the port side of the ship which contained women and children and which were left hanging there when the ocean swallowed the ill-fated vessel.

Mountaineers Seek Men Who Killed Pair Raiding Still

Prestonburg, Ky., Nov. 27—Armed with warrants, the sheriff of Knott county and a posse of mountaineers today were on the trail of four persons, alleged to be implicated in the murder of two Knott county peace officers on Bates branch of Right Beaver creek, 18 miles from Hindman, near the Floyd-Knott county line.

The murdered men, Magistrate A. J. Thornsbury, 41, and Constable William Thornsbury, his brother-in-law, were slain Sunday but the news of their death was not made known until late yesterday, due to the isolated and sparsely settled territory.

They had set out to raid a still on Bates branch. Their bodies, riddled with bullets, were found lying near the still. Identity of the persons named in the warrants has not been divulged.

Surprised!

Artists say there's not a prettier profile in Manhattan, but ordinary people compliment her more often on her wonderful mass of soft, gleaming brown hair. She's Adra Adams, lovely New York City girl who lives at 120 East 55th street.

"I was certainly surprised," says Miss Adams, "to see how easy it is to keep my hair soft, shining and easily manageable by the new method so many of my girl friends are using. I don't have to shampoo mine more than once a month now. Danderine keeps it so clean, it makes my scalp feel just wonderful and I never have a sign of dandruff any more. And Danderine is so simple to use. All you do is put a little on your brush each time you fix your hair."

Danderine quickly removes that oily film from your hair and restores its natural color and lustre. It keeps bobbed hair in place without showing. It stops dandruff. It isn't sticky or oily. All drug stores have the generous 35c bottles.—Adv.

If I Were A Man

BY JILL

I WOULDN'T insist on Mystery and Sex as woman's principal attractions. After all, most mysteries are solved eventually, and sex is as old as Adam and Eve. I'd encourage a girl to behave like an ordinary, everyday person, with a mind and a soul as well as a body, instead of demanding that she keep me ever mystified and excited in order to hold my attention. I'd take for granted that she might have a brain which it would be worth my while to cultivate, and I'd give her a chance to supply me with mental as well as physical stimulation. I'd think of her sometimes as a possible partner, a real companion with whom I could share my thoughts and interests instead of an exciting plaything to be reserved for my lighter, more exhilarated moments. I wouldn't demand a new bag of tricks every time I saw her, or insist on the constant illusion of an unanswerable riddle to keep alive the flame of my desire. I'd put myself in her place, and instead of regarding her as a combination sphinx, clothes-horse and vamp I'd treat her like a human being.

If I Were A Girl

BY JACK

I WOULDN'T look with scepticism on all the other girls my husband used to know before he married me. When he introduced one of them I wouldn't greet her with a chip on my shoulder and a cold, insulting stare that says as plainly as words, "Oh, so you're So-and-So! Well, I don't see what John ever saw in you!" It's a dead give-away, that. Friend Husband knows at once that Wifie is jealous—and profits by the knowledge—and so does the other girl! I wouldn't try to impress her with the fact of John's devotion by sending him on errands and ordering him around in her presence. He'd go, probably, but he'd never forget and he'd never forgive me for flaunting his servitude in public. And I wouldn't show my jealousy still further by making disparaging remarks about the other girl, as soon as she turned her back. Instead, I'd try to be friendly and natural! I'd make believe I liked her, even if it were a struggle, and I'd keep in mind the fact that after all, I was the one John chose to marry, and not the other girl!

Meditations OF A Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

The Light That Lies

GO to, my Daughter. Wherefore shalt a man torment a woman with the cold and bitter truth, when a little fib will cheer her spirit and solace her vanity?

For, lo, there be seven graceful ways to deceive a woman, and every one of them is amateur proof!

Behold, there is the way of the diplomat, who talketh in the abstract and wooeth every damsel in vague hints, sweet implications and subtle gestures, but leaveth always a drawbridge over which to retreat.

And there is the way of the telephone liar, who cheerfully maketh a thousand promises while he is in a woman's presence, but retracteth all his words with graceful excuses when he reacheth the first telephone booth.

And ther is the way of the plutonic friend who admireth a damsel for her mental charms, praiseth her wit and doeth the "dutch, and hearty," but whose chumminess is but a smoke screen, and whose heart-to-heart talks end always in lip to lip silences.

And there is the way of the Tired Business Man, who striveth not his information, but leaveth all his alibis to his stenographer. For with a few yards of wire between them and a brave woman to defend him, he feareth NO damsels "comeback."

And there is the way of the cave-man, whose motto is "Tell them nothing!" Who lieth boldly and without scruple when it suiteth his pleasure, saying "That which she doth not know, will not worry ME!"

And there is the way of the woman-tamer, who "saieth it" with flowers and glances and kisses, but never with words, and keepeth a damsel always hoping—and guessing.

And there is the way of the perfect Ananias, who lieth for the pure love of lying—and always artistically. For he rejoiceth more to tell a beautiful lie than to tell the simple truth, even when the latter would better serve his purpose.

Verily, verily, there are but two brands of liars—the plain and the fancy. But, of the fancy liars, there are a hundred varieties, and all of them are standardized.

Wherefore, then, oh my Daughter, need any man shatter a woman's vanity by offering her the plain, unseasoned truth?

. . And he said, when Mr McKevitt said he knew what he was doing, that San Quentin was full of others that thought the same way—"

"Oh, that doesn't mean anything!" Daphne almost laughed in her relief "You know how Mr Greely always talks—he exaggerates everything—"

"Just the same things must be pretty bad"

"Because Mr Greely blew up? Cora Yardley, you know what a temper he has' Didn't I see him put that life insurance salesman out last week just because he—'

'I don't know anything about life insurance but I do know that Mr Greely's temper is under better control than some people think He only lets it fly when he has a reason for it and he thinks it's going to get him something—'

'All right then, he's trying to bully Ralph into doing things his way—but that's no sign he's right and Ralph's wrong!' Daphne retorted

Have it your own way I'm sorry I said anything I'm sure it's nothing to me!' Miss Yardley got the last word after all

After that there was a coolness between the two girls Miss Yardley went out to lunch with Mr McMurtries secretary instead of Daphne and Daphne was left alone Not that she

There were two gorgeous always to be remembered days when Ralph met her at the Lakes and took her to lunch Then to wait for him in the patio ... with her little brown pumps tor... straight out before her ("Never ... with your legs crossed, no lady does," her stepmother had taught her) and her gloved hands politely folded in her lap How to watch the celebrating, and the lunch ...an groups and the business men, well groomed and prosperous looking Waiting for Ralph the best look ...ing one of all!!

Gardenias for her at the flower stand Or would you rather have roses, or one of those orchids? Too bad they haven't any genuine blossoms!" Ralph teasing her, buying everything for her thinking of everything. Surely he wouldn't be in such good spirits, and spending so much money if Miss Yardley were right'

The yellow car was often at the Hinckle door in the evenings now, and Mrs Spellman and Mrs Halliday the eight housekeeping ladies from upstairs had something to talk about again There was dash into the country and dinners down town and two flights and a swim in the big tank near the ocean when she almost drowned paddling out beyond her depth admiring his beautiful rhythmical stroke watching his wet blond head cleave through the dark green water

And then there was the night the redhead the night when he took her to hear Carmen at the Civic and former and she succumbed to Flora's entreaties and bought a blues chiffon dinner dress for the occasion

Miss Viola was a little hurt because she hadn't been asked to make it Of course I couldn't make it for about half what it cost you Those soughten things are just thrown together Hold still is what a fitting Very stylish, but dearie why did you get black? Black is so old—'

'With her black hair and white skin it's a crime for her to wear anything else' Flora shouted drowning her out 'In fact if I were you Daphne I'd marry some old guy with one foot in the grave so as to be a young widow if you wouldn't look wond rful in real swell mourning with one of those marvelous hats with white ruching and a long veil and a string of real pearls to relieve the all black—"

I wore black for Hinckle two years after no pearl beads I had for old Mrs Hinckle mumbled moistening a crooked finger and rubbing the hem of Daphne's dress to see if the dye was fast Ach it looks all right I don't know maybe it's stylish, after it wouldn't do for me—

Even Mrs Spellman hearing the confab came and stood in the door was admirin, the new dress and apologizing for her dirty kimono Don't look at me, I been washing out a few things I like to do "Mr Spellman's union suits myself, the laundry's so hard on them— That low neck looks fine on you Miss Haines, you've got a real full neck considering how thin you are I always like a good plump neck And legs with some shape to them Mr Spellman always says Mercy don't all look at my legs I got on an old pair of stockings and Spellman's slippers I was just goin' up stairs to get cleaned up time goes so just it's o'clock before a body knows it—'

In the end she had to go up to Flora's room to get away from the mob There Flora brushed her black hair until it lay slick and lustrous as satin on her small well shaped head Lipstick, and a touch of mascara— Flora was an artist at make-up and finally—after a half hearted, 'Oh I couldn't, Flora—I couldn't think of it she borrowed Flora's Spanish shawl'

Coming out of the opera she saw her fleeting reflection in a glass Oh! she gasped, stealing another look to make sure This radiant starry eyed girl Daphne Coming out of the opera with Ralph McKevitt'

It's too good to be true,' she thought that night 'It can't last—some darn thing'll go and happen'

And something must have happened for he stopped coming

Busy' he explained briefly, "Sorry I can't get away!" So there wasn't anything to do but hear it and make up excuses to tell the in quisitive roomers

It was a poor night when Flora McCardle didn't have somebody to take her out, but accidents will happen

One Saturday night two weeks after Carmen she tripped at Daphne's door Doing anything special?

Daphne laid down her darning and yawned Not a thing Ralph is seeing some man on business—'

'Get your hat, and we'll take in the movies I've got a couple of passes'

They stopped at a candy store for caramels on the way and Flora chewed steadily through two reels crumpling the paper bag and sighing at intervals God what's the use of two females pretending to have any fun alone? Isn't this a rotten picture? If I'd thought it was going to be this punk I'd stayed home! But Daphne enjoyed every moment of it, and walked up the aisle in a beautiful daze when it was over lost in dreams of love and romance

Flora had to nudge her twice 'Right ahead—the tall fellow in gray—'

She followed Flora's pointing finger Walking down the aisle, not two feet ahead of them, was Ralph and a girl The girl raised slender beautiful hands, and adjusted her small close fitting hat As she turned her head Daphne saw the line of her cheek, the crisp yellow curls under the green hat

She clutched Flora's arm convulsively

Ralph . and Crystal Garrett'

Flora chattered all the way home in the street car, but Daphne hardly heard a word She was praying wordlessly, 'Don't let me be jealous don't let me believe bad things about Ralph . make me believe in him, as I want to do—"

Love's Awakening

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affection

BY ADELE GARRISON

Scheme for the Harmonious Pairing

KATHERINE'S anxiety to get back into the living room and watch the dancers was no greater than my own, and we hurried through our cutting and marking of the cards which should match the supper partners and gave a final inspection to the buffet meal we had prepared

'It's as attractive a table as I ever saw," she said 'Against the background of this kitchen it is especially effective Isn't it lucky Estie loves flowers to work with?

The smiling assent I gave had a bit of tenderness in it, for my little maid's love for my flower garden and her care of the blossoms always have been a strong bond between us From the first crocus to the last chrysanthemum the rooms are always filled with flowers, and Katie always has large vases of them in the kitchen This particular evening she had a riot of asters and zinnias and from them I was able to select bits of orange and bronze and gold with a touch of lavender for contrast which made a charming centerpiece for the buffet supper table

We slipped quietly into the corner of the living room near the door where he had arranged a table for the bowl of fruit punch We filled up the sadly depleted punch bowl from the pitcher we carried us changed the used glasses for fresh ones and settled down to watch the dancers who, having finished the 'Paul Jones were waiting again

'We wouldn't need those cards if we could only call Keep your partners for supper' Katherine whispered and I saw that they indeed were paired as we had planned in order to minimize the danger of a scene threatened by the emotional tension hidden beneath the conventional mask of some of our guests

Prince Georges and Princess Olga, Charles Owen and Mary, Noel and Carolyn, Ronald and Marion—all were dancing as if they had not a thought beyond the pleasure of the moment, yet I knew that five of them were near the explosive point with their emotions. There were but three happy, carefree faces Carolyn, an elfish, deliciously pretty sprite, was patently wild with delight at this unexpected chance for a party,' that acme of schoolgirl desires, while Marion and Ronald were so happily absorbed in each other that they might have been alone in the room for all either knew of their surroundings

Look at those two faces!" Katherine whispered Lillian would better watch out. An early infatuation like that sometimes leads to an engagement and marriage, you know and with Carolyn as Marion's room mate this year, Ronald is likely to be very much in the offing'

'I know" I said worriedly, then, with the eternally alive feminine tendency for romantic planning, began to push objectious out of the way.

It isn't as bad as if Ronald had Sam Brixton's blood in his veins' I said Lillian couldn't have stood that and we couldn't blame her But there couldn't be a sweeter or more high-minded woman than Helena Brixton The father was a rotter I believe, though I am not sure that Lillian told me so, outright But I received that impression from somewhere"

'Well, for that matter so was Marion's, you know," Katherine said bluntly, 'yet you'd be very angry with Helena Brixton if she disapproved her son's attention to Marion on that account

I nodded absently, for I was watching the other dancers, reading beneath their carefully masked faces the widely different but equally strong emotions which were swaying them

'Well' rallied Katherine, after watching me silence for a minute or two 'is the mind reading stunt nearly finished If not, you'd better hurry for that dance record's coming to an end and then it will be high time to serve supper

Toughest Job

THE toughest job in Marion. That is the position held by Bill Martin who was reelected president of the Marion Industrial basketball league last night. At the same time the reelection of Martin is a tribute of team representatives to the way he has conducted the loop in the past

Martin has been one of the leaders in industrial basketball for the past several years and its success can be traced to his capable leadership

He must receive the knocks of players and fans and much of the league's work rests upon his shoulders There are always times when players have a tendency to blame the president for little things that happen things that mean little but incr ase his work and worry.

Players Can Help

In the best of battle players should always remember that practically all the "dirty" work of the league is done by the president. He must see that officials and players are ready to start the game on time, take care of protests, keep the crowd in order, direct the ticket sales and a hundred and one other things that go to make the season a success

His burden would be greatly lightened if every player would do his part in conducting the league True sportsmanship helps a long way and one must remember that all the glory does not go to the winner. Play to win is a good motto, but to be a good loser is a better one

The same thing holds true with the other league officials Frank Thomas is a veteran at the game and will handle the league finances again this season O. E Bush, secretary, is a new man in the league but has plenty to do.

Need Rubber Type

Head writers are always supposed to have an easy task But the writer is already taking pity upon himself after glancing over the list of teams that will compose the Industrial league this season

Imagine attempting to say that "Standard Oil-Columbus, Marion and Delaware Electrics defeat Power Manufacturing-Fairfield Engineering Five" in 30 letters. You can pick out any number of other impossible combinations from the list of teams.

All all happened when the league managers voted to consolidate with other shops this season taking on a double name. It means many a sleepless night figuring combinations of letters that will tell the story and at the same time not run more than 30 units to an eight column head When we write a head that fails to fit, the composing room, in a friendly tone, inquires "do you think we have rubber type back here?" Rubber type or a straight-jacket will be needed before the coming basketball season closes.

Sports Editor, The Star

Bill Martin will again head the league this season, having been reelected president by team representatives last night. T. J. Thomas was renamed treasurer while O. E Bush will follow Frank Barnhill as secretary.

by John W. Heisman

ONE of the most hectic football games of antiquity was that of 1898 between Pennsylvania and Lafayette Probably no more fiercely and desperately fought game ever was witnessed. Neither team, up until the last few minutes had been able to score a point, and so evenly matched were the two teams that it seemed certain the game would end in a draw.

Then Penn managed to put over a touchdown, but failed at the try for goal, which left them four points to the good, and that seemed ample. But the Maroon players now battling more courageously and with greater determination than ever. Their persistency began to get its reward. Slowly but surely they worked the ball past midfield, then a punt or two was exchanged and Lafayette had it on Penn's 30 yard line and fairly close to the left boundary line. Lafayette here pulled an old time boundary trick that took the Penn secondary defense on a wild goose chase out into the open—after a lot of fake Lafayette interference—and while this hocus pocus was going on Barclay slipped down the boundary line with the ball for 20 yards. The ball was brought in 15 yards Two smashes netted nothing and then again it was "Who will take the message?"

NO one but good old Barclay. Away he went—a wide sweep around right end with Penn tacklers scattered before him How could he make headway against that tornado of Red and Blue fury swooping down upon him? Into the vortex he plunged, he fought and fended them off; he tore himself free again and again to fall exhausted at last across the last white line for the fleing touchdown The goal was kicked and Lafayette won the glorious game.

We cannot pause here to describe scenes or games, but players—MEN, men who made football, men whom football made. Barclay was one of these. He and big "Babe" Ricbart were the men who made history that day. Their captain, Walbridge, had been operated on for appendicitis but a few minutes before the game started, and he was fighting for his life even as they were battling for the victory that should cheer him in his struggle.

THAT victory and a later scoreless tie game against Princeton gave Lafayette a tie with Princeton for the championship; it was the first time any small college had broken into the Big Four. Barclay did his share The year before he had won an important game against Cornell with a 60 yard run for a touchdown and he had made runs of 45 and 80 yards against a very strong Lehigh eleven

Barclay was a grand athlete When he went into professional baseball he made good at once with the St. Louis nationals and soon was conceded to be the fastest base runner in the big show. He was elected coach of both Lafayette football and baseball teams, and it was while serving in these capacities that he died.

Lafayette has had hundreds of superb athletes since that day, but the writer has talked with many who have followed Lafayette's teams closely through the past 40 years, and they say with singular unanimity, The greatest were Rinehart and Barclay"

Player-Writers Will Be Barred from Competition

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Nov. 27—Miss Helen Wills, greatest of all women tennis players, and Will Tilden, the one-two, may be required next season to resist the artistic urge to commit masterpieces for publication, under pain of being barred from representing the United States in all international matches.

An intimation to this effect was forthcoming today from a source close to the United States Lawn Tennis association, it being stated that the executive committee soon would be asked to consider a rule whereby player-writers were not to be allowed to represent this country in international competition. In brief, the rule would demand that the player make a choice between his or her art and a chance to play on the Davis cup and Wightman cup teams It is understood that the proposed legislation would be so framed as to affect both men and women, some of the latter having been equally unsuccessful in their efforts to control artistic impulses. Miss Wills and Mr. Tilden have been among our most successful failures in this respect.

The proposal, of course, is a back wash, from Mr Tilden's tribulations with the amateur rule committee last summer. Mr. Tilden even at this moment being engaged in the great American pastime of heel-cooling because as a newspaperman, he is alleged to have dealt with subjects that a scandalized committee considered to have news value. This, of course, is a violation of rule six and seven-eighths of the managing editors' code, the latter having been drawn up especially to insure the suppression of facts Anyhow, Mr. Tilden is only nominally a player-writer today because the committee has allowed him to do no playing since his perfidy was established officially It probably isn't necessary to mention that the matter be one official immediately after France scored the winning points in the Davis cup challenge round.

The understanding now is that the long man's sentence, what with time off for good behavior, will be commuted on Dec 8. The executive committee will hold its annual meeting on that date and, among other things, the tip is that it will discover that Mr. Tilden is an amateur in good standing

CRANE AND GABLE TO COACH QUINTETS PRACTICE START

Central Will Play First Game at Y. M. C. A. Dec. 7

With formation of basketball eligibility rules applicable to junior high school students, plans for activities of Vernon Heights and Central Junior high school basketball teams got under way this week.

Teams, being formed at both Vernon and Central by the respective coaches, Alwyn Crane and Cecil Gabler, will be subject to the following rules drawn up and signed by Schools Superintendent Jesse H Mason, the Principals R A. Garvin of Vernon Heights and W. E. Orcutt of Central

Code of Rules

1 Each player must be a bona fide member of the school for which he is playing and he must be carrying a normal load. In the junior high school this should mean at least four major studies.

2. He must not have reached his sixteenth birthday before April 15 of the year preceding the opening of the present school year.

3 He must have passed in four of the major studies during the preceding semester. An exception to this rule will be allowed in 1928 20, since during the preceding year the rule called for a passing grade in three subjects only

4. The accumulative grade in each of the four major studies must be passing or above at the end of the week preceding the week in which the game is to be played

5. The school principal shall have the authority to declare any player ineligible at any time in matters of discipline or misconduct.

Three-Game Series

Vernon and Central Junior high schools will play three games this year for the city junior high championship The winner of a similar three-game series last year was Central which team won two of the three contests

Central's team will open its season Friday, Dec 7 with an alumni game at the Y. M. C. A Later it will play two games with Galion Junior high school and possible other games with junior high teams of surrounding cities

LIBERAL INTEREST

WHITE consciences are compara tively rare in this city of free thinking here s a tale of a woman whose conscience developed to an amaz ing degree

Several years ago this woman vis ited a local greenhouse and while be ing conducted through rooms of small growing plants, she picked up two small ferns that had just started to grow and willfully neglected to tell the proprietor of her acquisition

The ferns grew blossomed into blooming plants which gave her an un comfortable feeling every time they were admired Finally when she could stand it no longer she wrote a letter of several pages in length ex plaining her act to the greenhouse proprietor and inclosed 50 cents to pay for the fern plants

The amusing part of this unusual tale is the fact that the greenhouse proprietor was ahead about 45 cents on the deal as ferns at so early a stage sold at two for five cents.

HOLIDAY SPIRIT

PERHAPS enough has been said about the approach of Christmas and the holidays but proof that the newspapers aren't the only ones in terested in the gay season was evident on Center st the other day

YIELDS PROFITS

CONTENTIONS of the sponsors of the recent West Center st Mardi gras that such a festival brings new business into the city are given a sound foundation by two incidents that have resulted from that detail of Hallowe en 1928

A firm dealing in infants' and chil drens wear had a suit for a small boy displayed in its show window on the night of the Mardi gras A mother from Port Clinton which is on Lake Erie was here for the Hal lowe'en festival She saw the suit and liked it so much that several days later she and her husband drove down to Marion again to buy the outfit.

That particular suit had been sold in the meantime, but the store man agement succeeded in selling the cou ple another suit

An incident almost exactly the same occurred at a local shoe store A man from Bucyrus saw a pair of shoes in the window there that he liked The next week he again vis ited Marion in order to buy that par ticular pair

BILL ALLOWED

City To Reimburse S. S. Bader for Sewer Repairs

S. S. Bader, 288 Forest st., will be reimbursed to the extent of $41.91 which he spent in repairing a faulty sewer tap in August, by an ordinance passed by city council last night. Although the bill had been presented on Aug. 27, council felt at that time that charges were too high.

Work of finding the faulty sewer tap, which was causing the sewer to become blocked, was given by G. P. Lawrence, local plumber, as the reason for the size of the bill, when he and Bader came before council again last night to ask that the bill be paid.

In attempting to open the sewer permanently, Lawrence worked twice on the sewer tap from the basement of Bader's home, had worked on the sewer in the backyard once, and finally had been forced to dig down to the connection with main sewer in the street, where the cause of the trouble was found.

Roots from shade trees on the street had entered the connection and blocked it, Lawrence informed council. The connection was also made at too sharp an angle, he said.

LINDY IN MEMPHIS

"You've Heard the Rumors," He Smilingly Tells Reporters

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 27—After taking Memphis by complete surprise, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh will resume his flight from San Antonio to New York today.

He expects to make the flight in one hop.

Colonel Lindbergh remained in Memphis for two hours yesterday afternoon before anyone outside of airfield attendants knew that he was here.

Questioned by reporters regarding his reported engagement to Miss Elizabeth Morrow, daughter of the ambassador to Mexico, Lindbergh smiled and said:

"You've heard the rumors. I've nothing to add."

HOPPE'S HOPES REST ON HIS ATTORNEY'S PLANS

Toledo, Nov. 27—Hopes of Charles Stanley Hoppe to escape death in the electric chair on Friday night hinged today on success of final plans of his attorney Elden H. Young, who is preparing an application to Chief Justice Carrington T. Marshall of the Ohio supreme court, for a writ of error whereby Young would per mitted to take the case to the U. S. supreme court at Washington.

Hoppe confessed to the strangulation of his cousin Dorothy Stelngowski, last May.

PROVIDE HOUSE FOR HOSPITAL NURSES

City Council Grants Authority for Lease to Director of Public Safety

An ordinance authorizing the director of public safety to lease a building to be used as a lodging house by the nurses of the city hospital was passed by city council last night. The same ordinance also authorized purchase of furniture and other supplies and appropriated funds for both purposes.

A total of $1,083.34 was appropriated for the rental and furnishing of the house by the ordinance. Not more than $1,000 may be spent on furniture and other supplies, while $83.34 will be used as rent.

MURDER CHARGED

Cedarville Man To Plead Self-Defense, Sheriff Says

Xenia, Nov. 27—A formal charge of murder was to be placed against Gilbert Cooper, 40, of Cedarville, when arraigned here today in connection with the fatal shooting Saturday of Caleb Hitchcock, 22. Cooper, it was said by Sheriff Tate, will plead self defense.

The shooting occurred, according to the sheriff, late Saturday when Cooper met Hitchcock and an argument ensued over alleged thefts of Cooper's traps. Three charges from a shot gun were fired into the young man's body, it was stated.

Cooper claims Hitchcock started to follow him with a heavy club and that after the young man swung the club at him, he shot.

LOST—ONE LEG

Cincinnatian Tells Judge Somebody Stole "Limb" While He Slept

Cincinnati Nov. 27—"Lost—one artificial leg; return to Frank Ross and no questions asked."

That's the advertisement Ross mournfully contemplated inserting in the papers here today.

He was arraigned in police court before Judge A. L. Luchera yesterday balancing himself precariously on one leg as he listened to the charge of drunkenness against himself.

Ross was released when he told the court some one had stolen his wooden leg, while he slept under the Broadway bridge here.

Marion Star Staff Writer

...new colors which are being ...n the stores for wear in the ...both for daytime and evening ...s, are clear and bright, de...especially to contrast effectively ...e fashionable sun-burned skin ...so many of the lucky ones return to flaunt before their friends. Sun-burned skin has had a decided effect upon the mode of the moment and the stocks of Marion's merchants. Most popular for evening are lavenders, greens, yellows and blues. The popularity of blue is not diminishing and is worn for winter daytime and evening occasions.

Popular Colors

Chener's "Jeanne D'Arc" is one of the new bright dark blues suitable for street or travel wear. Slate blue, being sponsored by Patou, is rapidly increasing as a shade for afternoon and evening wear. Beige, which as all local women in step with the styles know, has been overshadowed by the popularity of brown this season. It is important for resorts, and is being used extensively in combination with brown, coats of beige lines with this shade being worn over brown frocks, creating the new ensemble effect.

Red, decidedly growing in favor here, will be featured for wear in the south. Often it is shown in two and three color combinations. Black and white and navy and white are shown with touches of red as a third color. A clear, pure yellow is the choice of many choosing their sports costumes.

New Idea

The idea of contrasted colors is newer than the ensembles of harmonizing shades, and offers many possibilities when selecting accessories from the local stocks.

—Palm Beach is being decorated this season with printed silks, one of the outstanding results of the mode this year. Small all-over floral effects are still in good taste for formal wear. Three-color effects are excellent for street and daytime wear for warmer climates and the spaced patterns, on bright or dark backgrounds, are good for sports wear and for the jacket suits and ensembles being designed for those who will go to the South for the winter, or who are living there.

The local stores have beautiful patterns in sheer, printed chiffons, the ideal choice for the formal afternoon, dinner or dance frock, combining the minimum of weight with the maximum of all that's smart.

Shoe With Class

An interesting sports shoe being shown is a one strap, medium heel in suede and calfskin with a solid leather heel. A smart street shoe is a pump in two shades of kidskin and for afternoon, a one strap slipper with high heel, in suede with reptile trim. Brocade with metal kidskin combine in an attractive evening slipper.

The tendency is strong this season for hosiery to match the complexion and to match shoes, hats and handbags. Several clever ensembles have been arranged by the departments in local stores. For travel and winter costumes, from which the customer is inclined to prefer dark accessories, gloves and shoes may match and in the case of beige and sunburned tones in shoes, gloves may also be selected to match.

Red kidskin is well on its way to resort popularity, according to shoe dealers, and may match the red frock and be worn with sunburned hose or a white costume, or a print with some red in the pattern.

Jewelry Conforms

The local stores are closely following fashion's dictate of the importance of costume jewelry this season. Not only must it be suitable to the occasion, it must be suitable to the neckline of the dress and in color to the ensemble. It may give accent to the costume by contrasting in color with the ensemble and may match the color of the frock when that color is both becoming to the wearer and definite in itself. The colors shown range the entire gamut of clear, even tones, to contrasts in stones and metals. The jewelry counters of the stores are a delight to the feminine buyers.

Merchants and customers are having a merry time this season, making sure that they have just the right stock complete and that the styles and colors are in coordination with fashion.

It is probable that many of the styles which these same merchants have striven to follow so closely, and which predominate at the resorts, will travel north as spring comes and some may be repeated in the summer costumes here.

High blood pressure causes much physical discomfort and if permitted to continue, is extremely dangerous. It should be checked at the earliest possible moment.

Thanks to a physician's prescription, high blood pressure may be reduced quickly and easily. Simply go to your nearest drug store and get a bottle of Norma. Norma is a palliative in cases of high blood pressure. A few days' use should show a marked improvement in your condition. The thumping and pounding in your head should disappear and as the blood pressure is reduced the dizzy spells should become less and less frequent and you should find you are much stronger, have more endurance with a real joy in living.

Norma is a scientific formula, is not a laxative, is easy and pleasant to take and often only a few days' use is very helpful.—Adv.

Railroad Stocks Stake Active Part In Forward Price Move

OCTOBER EARNINGS OF RAILS INCREASE

American Can Directors Declare Extra Stock Dividend of $3

YELLOW TRUCK UP

International Nickel Climbs 10 Points; Expect Reorganization

BULLETIN

New York, Nov. 27—Using the railroad stocks as the new battering ram, bulls in the stock market swept everything before them in a new 5-to-15 point jump in stock prices today. The market "slowed down" to a 5,000,000 share clip in the first three hours and appeared to be geared up for one of those "inactive" normal days casually discussed in the big financial district.

Many of the big systems are earning from $12 to $20 a share, their stocks failing to reap the lime-light simply because there has been no one to push them there.

BY W. S. COUSINS
I. N. S. Financial Editor

New York, Nov. 27—The railroad stock played a biggee part in the forward move of prices at the beginning of trading today. Bulls in the rails were happy over the action of New Haven directors in putting the common stock on a four per cent dividend basis and rushed in to buy the stock around 80.

American Can directors also made good by raising the dividend basis to $3 a share, as well as ordering an extra dividend of a dollar a share. This extra two or three times a year will give holders of the stock $5 or $6 a year in cash every year.

Railroad directors sprung a surprise with their October earnings statements mostly showing decrease of costs and increase of gross earnings, meaning more money for supplies, expansion wages and dividends. Leading railroads sold up about a point on the average.

A new flare-up in the tightly cornered International Nickel sent that stock up 10 points to 221. The company is about ready for reorganization under British direction, when it will control 90 per cent of the world's nickel business.

The pool in Yellow Truck gobbled up all stock offered around $60 a share, yesterday's closing price. As the company has never made any money, it was Wall Street's guess that a good, sound, beating was being given to the shorts in this week's 15 point leap of the stock.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S GRAIN

Chicago, Nov. 27—Corn did an abrupt "about face" yesterday and marked up good gains in prices. The sharp break the latter part of the previous week had put the market in a healthy condition. Interest broadened as the session progressed, and with shorts and sellers of privileges forced to protect themelves the advance was rapid.

Wheat was erratic. A firm opening was accountable to unexpected strength at Liverpool, but heal pressure developed and prices eased. Later a rally with corn carried prices to the early highs and the market finished firm with moderate advances

Closing quotations showed net gains of 1@1 1-2c for corn, 1-2@5-8c for wheat, 1-2@5-8c for oats and 1-2 @1c for rye. Winnipeg futures were 3-8@1-2c higher at the end of trading period.

Movement Increases

With the excellent weather which prevailed last week there were many indications of a large increase in the movement of corn, including receipts of over 600 cars in the local market However, the country, while offering 100 000 bu yesterday, was not as anxious to market its corn as was expected, particularly in view of the fact Chicago bids are lower than those from other points.

There was excellent buying power in the pit and early offerings of locals and foreign connections were rapidly absorbed and the early sellers turned buyers later. Some of the buying by locals was based on the forecast for unsettled weather.

While the present heavy run of corn is expected to continue for ten days or two weeks, there appears to be plenty of demand to take up the offerings, so that stocks will not accumulate to any great extent. There was an expected increase in the visible supply yesterday. It was 1,210,000 bushels. The total now stands at 5,025,000 bushels, as compared with 20 125 000 bushels a year ago

The action of the market would suggest that the effect of the increased movement has been discounted Up to the time of the heavier movement the corn market is always a weather affair; following this it is more apt to be based directly on supply and demand.

There were further indications yesterday that the demand will be fairly brisk. Cash interests reported that Chicago was being outbid in Illinois by 1⅝@2⅜c.

Advices from Washington said that the 1928 production of corn in twelve countries, which last year raised 90 per cent of the Northern Hemisphere crop now totals 3,330,581,000 bu. only 1 per cent more than a year ago. However, it is pointed out, the total for the eight European countries is only 841,715,000 bu. or more than 22 per cent below a year ago.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Marion housewives may expect a marked rise in the price of tokay grapes within the week, according to information obtained from local retailers this morning. Wholesalers are expected to boost the quotation on the only grape remaining on the markets of the city, they stated.

Present prices on tokay grapes are extemely low. In fact all grapes except the large Concord grape raised in Michigan, which was quoted at an almost impossible figure this year, were sold at unusually low prices this season.

This condition resulted from the unusual abundance of the grape crops this season and from the unwillingness of consumers to purchase grapes at all unless quoted at low figures.

Reports received from New York state that grape growers there have suffered heavy losses as a result of the low prices on their products in spite of the bumper crops which were harvested.

No price changes were reported on retail markets of the city this morning.

FINAL PLANS MADE FOR DINNER MEETING

Col. W. C. Archer To Address Local Business Men at Y. M. C. A.

Final arrangements were under way today for a dinner meeting of local business and professional men to be held at the Y. M. C. A. at 6 o'clock Wednesday night, when Col. W. C. Archer, of the Plumbing and Heating Industries bureau, of Chicago, will speak.

Col. Archer has addressed luncheon clubs in many large cities. He has traveled extensively and is ranked as an unusually capable speaker.

Archer, a student of sanitation methods employed since the first recorded civilization 5,000 years ago at Babylon and an explorer of ancient cities throughout the civilized world, will speak on "Sanitation and Civilization."

"Dirt has killed more men than bullets and modern ideas of cleanliness have done more to perpetuate our civilization than anything else," Archer asserts.

This meeting is open to the public. Reservations for the dinner may be made by calling the office of the Y. M. C. A.

RUPTURE
SHIELD EXPERT HERE
E. J. Meinhardi, of Chicago, the well-known expert, will personally be at the Harding Hotel, Marion, Ohio, on Friday only, Nov. 30, from 9:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m. Mr. Meinhardi says:
"The Meinhardi Rupture Shield" will not only retain the Rupture perfectly, but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case—usually giving instantaneous relief withstanding all strain regardless of the size or location of the Rupture.
"The Meinhardi Rupture Shield" has no understraps. It is also perfectly sanitary and practically indestructible and can be worn while bathing.
Ruptures often cause Stomach Troubles, Backache, Constipation, Nervousness and other ailments which promptly disappear after the Rupture is properly retained.
Notice—Only gentlemen are invited to call at this time as special arrangements will be announced later for women and children.
Please do not write asking for literature or to be fitted by mail, as this is impossible. Every customer must be seen personally; therefore, I visit this section from time to time. There is no charge for demonstration.
SPECIAL NOTICE—All customers that I have fitted here during the past five years will please call for inspection. Please note the above dates and office hours carefully. Business demands prevent stopping at any other city in this section. (This visit is for white people only).—E. J. Meinhardi, Home Office, 151 N. Crawford Avenue, Chicago.—Adv.

Petition for a traffic signal light at Center and Leader sts was filed with city council last night by a group of West Center st business men The petition was referred by council to the finance committee to determine if the city has sufficient funds to install the light

Clifton Lower of the Lower Pharmacy Center and Leader sts represented the petitioners at the council meeting

Prediction that a serious accident would occur at that intersection within the next 90 days if precautionary measures are not taken was told of by the drivers of the traffic situation at that point

Pedestrians crossing Center st at Leader st are endangered by automobiles coming out of Leader st from the north and out of and Olney av from the south Lower stated They are unable to see cars approaching Center st from the north on Leader st and from the south on Olney av and as a result are frequently bewildered and endangered when motorists make quick turns onto Center he said

Frequently serious accidents are avoided at this point only by a narrow margin and minor accidents occur frequently Lower reported The intersection of Center and Leader sts is the most dangerous corner in Marion he stated

Others Needed Chief Says

Police Chief J W Thompson however, informed council that traffic signals are needed at several other intersections in the city just as much as at Center and Leader sts

Davids st and Bellefontaine av Oak and Silver sts and Orchard and Center sts are all equally as dangerous intersections the police chief insisted No serious accident has yet been reported at Center and Leader sts he stated

First Canto Club Program of Season Provides Treat for Local Music-Lovers

Vocal Numbers by Mrs J Malcolm Strelitz Are Special Feature of Concert at Star Auditorium, Columbus Pianist Adds to Excellence of Entertainment

BY FRANCES JENNINGS
Marion Star Staff Writer

A decided treat for the music loving group who patronize Marion recitals and concerts was the all vocal program with which members of the Canto club a male chorus opened their sixth season last night at the Star auditorium

The audience not unusually large was comprised mainly of members of the Marion Lecture-Recital club local vocalists and musicians and others who seem at nearly all Marion affairs of the kind

An honored guest of the club at its performance last night was Miss Fernie Conkle of New York city pianist who will serve as guest soloist for the fifteenth Marion concert of the club March 5 at the Star auditorium

Program Feature

After an opening group by members of the club whose numbers could receive no higher praise than the words they were up to standard Mrs J Malcolm Strelitz who featured the program was introduced and immediately won her audience with her rendering of Aria Voce Di Donna by Ponchielli

Mrs Strelitz needed no introduction to Marion music lovers and her every appearance on the platform last night was greeted with approval and a wholehearted expression of enthusiasm upon the part of her audience

The outstanding note of the performance was the unusually well balanced program opened and closed by the singing of the club and interspersed with two excellent piano numbers by Mrs Strelitz's accompanist Edwin Stainbrook of Columbus The selections sung and played had been chosen with care to suit the occasion and with a view to presenting a program that combined variety with form

Second Group of Numbers

As her second group Mrs Strelitz sang Auf Geheimen Waldespfade by Charles J Griffes Wynta Summa Snow er Shine by L Leslie Loth Pierrot by Winifred Watts and Awake It Is the Day by Cecil Burleigh Pierrot a gay number in lighter vein was probably the most appreciated of the group

Mr Stainbrook then played Liebestraume No 2 by Liszt and German Dance by Beethoven An unusual display of approval upon the part of the audience made necessary an encore when he offered a popular number The Novelette from The Three Little Oddities of Zez Confrey

Continuing her program with a song group in foreign tongue Mrs Strelitz sang Si Mes Vers Avaient Des Ailes by Mana Hahn Gesar Weylas by Hugo Wolf and O Mio Bambbino Caro by Puccini

In closing Mrs Strelitz sang three folk songs "Little Star" a Mexican song in an arrangement by Frank La Forge "The Sandman" a German folksong, and "Reassured" a folksong of Austrian derivation She responded to an encore with "Little Raindrops" a merry little piece which was the most enthusiastically received of her entire program

Selection by Club

"The Miller's Wooing" by Eaton Fanning was the outstanding number of the group of three sung by the Canto club at the close of the program Genuine enthusiasm upon the part of the club audience made a second rendering of the number appropriate They also sang Little David Play on Your Harp a negro spiritual in an arrangement by Freeman High and Cute Ellis from the Land That Is Merry an old English ditty adopted by Alfred Moffat

Opening male choruses of the club which were equally beautiful displayed to advantage the unusually fine voices which make up the club The group included "Under Blossoming Branches" by F Meyer Helmund "The Mariners of Kermor" a spirited selection by C Saint Saens "The City of Chow" a Chinese translation by Granville Bantock and "Bedouin Song," by Arthur Foote

Card Directs Program

A large share of credit for the excellent vocal entertainment last night is due to Ernst C Carl, who directed the Canto club numbers and Mrs Helen Yuck Lacey Canto club accompanist

Quite as pleasing as her program was the gracious stage presence of Mrs Strelitz who was charming in an evening gown of white satin While she wore no flowers during the performance Mrs Strelitz was complimented with several baskets of chrysanthemums and roses at the close of her first number
